Expository Essay

Standards:

- The students will compare and contrast life during a specific historical era and life today.
- The students will articulate connections between aspects of WWII.
- The students will evaluate the relevancy of information found in nonfiction reference materials.
- The students will demonstrate effective communication skills when presenting information in written form.

In an expository essay, discuss the similarities and differences of life during WWII and today. The essay should follow the expectations for expository writing while including information that is accurate to the time period you are describing. You will be assessed using the ISAT writing rubric that we typically use for expository writing. An additional fifteen (15) points will be given for including a sufficient amount of historically accurate information.

To be added to the ISAT writing rubric:

Criteria	Multiplier	1	2	3	4	5
Sufficient amount of historically accurate information	X 3	Includes nearly no historically accurate information	Includes minimal historically accurate information	Includes some historically accurate information	Includes nearly sufficient amount of historically accurate information	Includes a very sufficient amount of historically accurate information
