

Criteria for Oral Presentations

- All members of the group are involved in the presentation.
- eye contact is made with the audience
- knowledge is presented in a clear and concise fashion
- choice of methodology is given with explanation
- volume level is appropriate
- presentation stays within the time limits

Scoring Rubric for Oral Presentations

1 point	0 points	Weight
All members of the group are involved in the presentation	One or more group members do not participate in the presentation	x 2
Mathematical knowledge is presented in a clear and concise manner.	Mathematical knowledge is presented in a confusing or disorganized manner.	x 2
Presenters make eye contact with the audience throughout the presentation.	Presenters do not make or maintain eye contact with the audience.
Presenters describe the groups' choice of methodology with an explanation for why they felt this was the best solution method to use	Presenters describe the groups' choice of methodology, but do not explain why they felt this was the best solution method to use.	x 2
All class members are able to hear the presentation because appropriate volume is used.	Members of the class that sit in the back of the room have a difficult time hearing the presentation.
The presentation is of appropriate length.	The presentation is either too short or too long.	